PROF. COLLETT'S APPOINTEES.

The Mine and Oil Inspectors, with the State Geologist, Ready to Begin Their Work.

Prof. John Collett took the oath of office as State Geologist, yesterday, and his first official act was to appoint S. T. Yancey, of Fortville, State Oil Inspector, and Thomas Tilson, of Petersburg, State Mine Inspector. Both gentlemen were in the city, and announced their willingness to accept the positions. Both are well qualified for the service to which they have been assigned. Mr. Tilson was appointed Mine Inspector by Governor Hovey before the Legislature sought to take the appointing power from him, but the Senate refused confirmation.

A Natural-gas Inspector will be named by Professor Collett to-day. The Professor and his appointees will enter upon their duties at once, as they believe the courts will sustain them in their positions.

Professor Gorby still save he will not Professor Gorby still says he will not begin any legal proceedings, and adds that he will refuse to surrender the office to the appointee of the Governor. It is the understanding that no legal proceedings will be begun by anybody before the Riley case is decided. The questions involved in that case have a bearing on the controversies over all the bearing on the controversies over all the other offices filled by the Legislature, and the Attorney-general thinks that the forthcoming decision may cover all the others.

As the case is to be argued before the Supreme Bench Tuesday, a decision will likely be rendered by the 20th inst. In the meantime Professor Collett and his assistants will proceed to exercise the duties of their several offices, and the employes of Professor Gorby will be held responsible for their acts if they attempt to use official anthority.

PAPERS ON VARIOUS TOPICS

Congregational Ministers Consider Matters Pertaining to Their Church.

Home Missionary Service and Its Results During the Year Has the Attention of the Association-A Talk About Mormons.

Yesterday morning the heat proved too much for the Congregational convention to again tempt the temperature of the lectureroom and the delegates moved into the main audience-room, where there was much more comfort. The reading of papers was resumed, the first one being by Rev. C. H. Rogers on the theme "The Church as a Home and the Church in the Home." Prof. W. A. Bell read a paper on "Special Educational Work" in which he laid much stress upon the necessity of education as a factor in Christian life to give the individual the ability to appreciate the good and beautiful things given by God to His people. Dr. Kincaid, of New York, in discussing this paper, said teachers were prone to magnify the importance of their profession, but that it was a mistake to suppose that an education of the intellect can take the place of a regeneration of the heart. It was the province of the minister of the gospel to develop the souls of the people, and a lack of education cannot prevent a soul's salvation. After this, Rev. Dr. G. B. Safford read a paper on "Co-operation with Other Churches." Rev. H. B. Knight, Bremen; Rev. H. Van Omereer, Andrews. Seven persons have taken up the work in the State, Wm. G. Law, at Macksville and South Vigo; Thos. Roe, as assistant of Rev. James Hayes on the coal-mine mission; James Orr, at Hebron, and Charles G. Sharp at Muncie. New edifices are under way at Fairmount and Tennyson, while at Marion, Andrews, Hammond, and other places, lots have been bought and some buildings may go up this season. It was further reported that the organization of societies of Christian Endeavor in a number of the smaller churches has greatly stimulated religious interest among the young people. ev. H. B. Knight, Bremen; Rev. H. Van among the young people.

Rev. Dr. Kincaid, of New York, spoke on the work of the Home Missionary Society. With a large map of the United States before him, and pointer in hand, he grew eloquent and prophetic. He saw the time approaching when the two States of Washington and Oregon, settled as closely as New England, would have a population of over seventeen millions. A little while ago one of the most careful and far-seeing of railroad magnates had predicted that within ten years there could be a city on Puget sound that will be larger than San Francisco will be at that time. He also spoke of the work in the South, showing the great gain that had been made in Georgia, Missouri, and other States, and said that if Congregationalism was to increase in Indiana it would grow by means of pushing the home missionary society to the front.

Rev. A. K. Wray spoke briefly on "General Sunday-school Work," and was followed by Rev. W. F. McMillan, of Cleveland, who spoke of the Sunday-school work of the church over the United States. During the past seven years Congregational Sunday-schools have received more than 150,000 children, and this fact, he thought, ought to stimulate the church. During this same period over 1,800 Sunday-schools of the denomination have been organized; 497 were organized last year, and 80 last year grew into churches. Dr. Cobb. of the American Congregational Union, New York city, spoke of the aid extended by the union to build churches, and the amount of that kind of work the union was called upon to do.

Terre Haute was chosen as the meeting-place of the convention for 1890, and at the usual time in May. Rev. J. H. Crum, Professor Alden, Terre Haute, and Rev. Charles Evans, Indianapolis, were selected as commers of the convention for 1890, and at the usual time in May. Rev. J. H. Crum, Professor Alden, Terre Haute, and Rev. Charles Evans, Indianapolis, were selected as committee on arrangements for that meeting. The Home Missionary Society for Indiana elected as officers for the ensuing year: Presi

TALK ABOUT ARTISTS.

The Men Who Make the Fine Illustrations for the Popular American Magazines.

There was not the usual large attendance, due no doubt to the excessive heat, at the art exhibit yesterday afternoon, when Miss Edgar began her talk. The subject was, "Ilustrators and Illustrations." Looking back over the past twenty-five years, she said, one can readily trace the progress that has been made in illustrations, especially in the magazines. They used to be made in porte crayon sketches, a few lines giving the subject. Now they all the finish of

Mr. Parsons looked them over, and told him to come back again the next day. The second visit resulted in his being taken upon the staff of artists of that magazine, where he has been ever his being taken upon the staff of artists of that magazine, where he has been ever since. The Harpers sent him to Europe, where he studied and sketched.

Mr. Parsons, Miss Edgar said, does more to encourage artists, and gives more light to Americans than any other one man. A Mr. Will Rogers who is particularly bright in remembering faces, with an ability to reproduce them, is on the Harpers'. His first assignment was to the Tombs, where he looked at the prisoners and studied their expressions and peculiarities. He has been gradually promoted, and his last work was to illustrate W. D. Howells's latest story. Reinhart, W. A. Rogers, Farney, A. Keppes, Gibson, Drake and Bloom the lady mentioned as among the chief illustrators in America. He had become sufficiently acquainted with the jewelers' art to handle goldsmiths' wares, but not enough to take a position as a regular salesman. With means furnished him by his family, he started on his own responsibility, and having excellent business qualities, was able to do well in all climes and countries which he visited.

Eight years ago he went to St. Louis and did well. It was about a year ago when he began to make his home with Leonard Barteje, of that city. There were two daughters in the family, who nursed Just as they would a brother when he was recovering from the effects of drink and morphine. He fell in love with the youngest, to whom he was married March 25 last. The wedding was hastened by the stress of trade, which, he said, made it necessary for him to travel among his customers in the East, from whom the wiles of love had lured him for a year. He would make a "Co-operation with Other Churches."

Which closed the morning session.

At the afternoon session the Indiana Home Missionary Society, Rev. Dr. Hyde, president, reported its work for the year. The real estate of the home mission churches has increased in value during the year about $700. The following ministers have closed their pastorates, and, with the exception of Mr. Evans and Dr. Hyde, taken work outside the State: Rev. N. A. Hyde, D. D., Mayflower Church, terminating a pastorate of sixteen years; Rev. Angelo Dougherty, Terre Haute; Rev. Chas. Evans, Cordova; Rev. Jasper Trueblood, Mauckport; Rev. H. B. Knight, Bremen; Rev. H. THE NATIONAL CEMETERY.

An Addition to Be Made to the Land Occupied by Soldiers' Graves at Crown Hill.

For some months past a committee representing the posts of the Grand Army of the Republic of this city and county has been in communication with the managing officers of Crown Hill Cemetery and the quartermaster's department of the United States, with the purpose of securing an addition to the national cemetery at this place. The grounds now owned by the government are so nearly filled with graves that no more interments can properly made there. Under instructions headquarters at Washington, Col. Henry C. Hodges, assistant col. Henry C. Hodges, assistant quartermaster-general, United States army, stationed at Louisville, Ky., yesterday came to the city to make the necessary examination on behalf of the government.

In company with Col. James H. Black, chairman of the G. A. R. committee, and George P. Anderson, secretary of the cemetery association, Colonel Hodges visited the grounds and inspected the proposed addition. It is a beautiful plat of somewhat more than one agree immeaddition. It is a beautiful plat of somewhat more than one acre, immediately south of the soldiers' cemetery, from which it is separated by a drive-way. Superintendent Chislett met the party and assisted in the examination. Colonel Hodges expressed himself as highly pleased with the proposed addition and its surroundings, and if a price can be agreed upon there seems to be good reason to expect that the additional grounds will be purchased. The cemetery association has been reserving this plat for some time for this purpose, and will offer it at a price greatly below the customary rate, because of the patriotic use to be made of it. There is little cause for doubt that the reasonable request of the surviving veterans will soon be granted by an amply sufficient increase of the burial grounds of the Nation's defenders. It is expected that the remains of General Canby will soon be removed from another portion of the cemetery and re-interred in the new addition to the national cemetery. Colonel Hodges is a relative of Dr. Hodges, of this city, whom he visited during his short stay here.

Refunding the School Money. The State officers will be ready in a few days to take steps toward refunding the school-fund bonds at a lower rate of interest, as provided by a recent act of the Legislature. The amount to be refunded is $3,905,000. The new bonds are to be issued in dedominations of $100, $500 and $1,000, in dedominations of $100, $500 and $1,000, and advertisements for their sale are to be published in the newspapers of Indianapolis, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia and New York. If there should be realized by the sale a greater sum of money than is necessary to cancel the old bonds, the law provides that the overplus shall be turned into the general fund of the State, "My idea is that the sale of the bonds should be consummated by June 20," said State Auditor Carr, yesterday. "That will give us an opportunity to but the money into the counties by July 1, and we will start in with an even half year. The advertisements for the sale of the bonds will be inserted as soon as some minor details have been completed."

A Proposed Sale of State Property.

In accordance with the provisions of an act of the last Legislature, authorizing the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer of State to sell the land and buildings on the southwest corner of Tennessee and Washington streets, the officers named yesterday apstreets, the officers named yesterday appointed E. B. Martindale, Colonel DeSouchet and William F. Heinrichs a commission to appraise the property. After the appraisement is filed with the Auditor of State that officer will dispose of the property at private sale. The act stipulates that the purchaser shall be required to pay one-half in cash, and the balance is to be paid in one and two years, with interest at 6 per cent., to be secured by first mortgage. The money received from the sale is to be transferred to the general fund. The property is supposed to be worth anywhere from $60,000 to $100,000.

The Work Done by Republicans. Governor Hovey yesterday issued a proclamation declaring in force from 12 o'clock yesterday, the acts of the recent General Assembly. Whitley county was the last to acknowledge the receipt of the acts, the notice reaching the Secretary of State during the forenoon. Secretary of State Griffin has received many congratulations and words of praise for the prompt publication and delivery of the acts. Mr. Beokwalter, clerk of the Bureau of State Printing, also deserves credit, as he ably assisted Mr. Griffin in the work. The laws are in force fully two months earlier than usual. If there had not been some delay in securing receipts from counties they could securing receipts from counties they could have been put in force a week ago.

Will Not Be Ready by the Fourth. The Soldiers' Monument Commissioners have decided that the corner-stone of the monument cannot be laid on July 4. The work, they say, will not be far enough advanced at that time, President Langsdale does not think the exercises will be any the less interesting if held later. He says the observance of Independence day promises at a time, and sometimes fourteen stones are used at the same time. If the design is in three or four colors it is more acceptations ble, and the house that prints would doubtless keep many people away these colored plates does nothing else. A picture printed recently is "A expectation now that the stone will be laid Roman Soldier," by Mrs. Nichols. TwoSCIENTIFIC FISHERMEN.

They Arrange for Tournament Prizes, and Discuss the New Law to Protect Fish.

The Fly-fishermen's Club had a good meeting last night at 72 East Market street, the object of which was to arrange a list of prizes for its coming tournament, and to discuss the best methods relating to the law preventing unlawful fisheries which was passed by the last Legislature. The It is related by people of St. Louis who tournament will be held on the 31st of this knew him well, that Henry Just. who com- month, at Wide Cut, north of Broad Ripple, and a large attendance is expected. Twelve prizes will be offered for the best fly casting, the record to be made up on a basis of prizes will be in the shape of rods, reels. Angler, and one box of selected flies. These will be offered by Gus Leauty, Lilly & Stalnaker, Charles Meyer, Kipp & Earp, Rochester, N. Y., and the American Angling Company, New York city. Cash prizes will also be given by Capt. DeWitt Wallace, Lafayette; Judge Byron K. Elliott, and the club.

The fish law discussed makes any one who shall take fish from the streams of Indiana with any other means than a hook and line guilty of a misdemeanor, and provides a penalty in the way of fine in any sum from $1 to $25 for each fish taken. It applies to all streams in the State, except the St. Joseph river. The cause for this exception is that the St. Joseph affords an inlet through the Elkhart river to Lake Michigad, and the laws of Michigan do not provide for fish-ladders in its streams. Fish Commissioner Wm. T. Dennis, of Richmond, was present at the meeting, and made some valuable suggestions to the club. He mingled considerable humor with his remarks, claiming that when he accepted his office he found that it contained no money, nor even a single fish.

"Probably you have concluded that you

"Probably you have concluded that you found a sucker," suggested one of his hear-

"Well, not exactly," replied the Commissioner, "but I have since found lots of small-fry minnows." Mr. Dennis then talked about the needs of fly-fishermen and the benefit the new law will be to their interests. He believed that propagation of fish is the main idea that should be followed, and propagation, he claimed, can best be reached by preservation. An inestimable amount of harm is being done by the use of dynamite, seines and other unlawful agencies, and the sooner this can be prevented and the law enforced, the greater benefit will be derived. In Gibson, Steuben, Montgomery and other counties throughout the State, the work has already begun looking toward the detection and conviction of any person violating the statute. Public opinion, it was further claimed, is being rapidly educated against this wholesale destructions of fish in the streams of Indiana, and to preserve this opinion is the only ly educated against this wholesale destructions of fish in the streams of Indiana, and to preserve this opinion is the only hope of success, provided the law is duly enforced. Mr. Dennis stated that he was highly pleased with this one act of the last Legislature, even though its history had been replete with blunders and fraud.

Judge DeWitt C. Wallace, of Lafayette, when called upon, informed the club that although he could not be considered a fly-fisherman, scientifically speaking, yet he had ambitions in that direction. He had done considerable fishing in the Wabash and Wildeat rivers, and had found from recent experiences that those strems are being gradually cleared of their fish by poachers of all kinds. He favored a rigid enforcement of the new law. Congressman Bynum also exhibited quite an interest in the subject. He was in favor of strict protection, but believed the best policy to be the construction of a bass hatchery, the only difficulty being, he thought, to find a suitable place for its location. Although the government has made no provision for such a movement, he volunteered all his services to bring about something of the kind favorable to the fish interests of the State.

Judge Byrou K. Elliot, who is an enthusiastic member of the club, disapproved of the idea of a hatchery, but believed that the only way to propagate the fish is to protect them. Indiana now the idea of a hatchery, but believed that the only way to propagate the fish is to protect them. Indiana now has as good a law on the subject, he said, as any other State in the Union, and all that is needed is a strict enforcement. He believed that if an example or two were made of some of the poachers their depredations would largely cease, and to this end he suggested that the club offer $25 reward to any one securing the conviction of one violator of the law. This suggestion took the form of a resolution, which was unanimously adopted. After considering several matters of minor importance the club adjourned. club adjourned.
